American Warships Help in Keeping Nazi Navy from Action

Battleship, Cruiser and Destroyers in Active Service

By J. WES GALLAGHER

LONDON, Thursday, June 11 (AP)—A strong United States navy task force has joined the British home fleet for a share in the job of keeping Hitler's high seas fleet from smashing at Allied shipping lanes.

The first announcement of the presence of the United States warships came today with the disclosure that King George VI had inspected a United States battleship, cruiser and destroyers.

The presence of the big ships was taken as an indication that the task force, commanded by Rear Admiral Robert Giffen, was powerful enough to offset or deal single handedly if necessary with Germany's mighty battleship Tirpitz and cruiser Admiral Hippen if they attempted to sail out of their base at Trondheim, Norway.

Escorted into Port

It was obvious that the American force had been in the British waters for some time. The announcement said it was greeted far out at sea by the British cruiser Edinburgh and escorted into port.

That historic duty was one of the Edinburgh's last, she was sunk May 3 during an attack by German submarines, destroyers and bombers on a convoy in the Arctic sea lane to Russia.

An officer who was on the Edinburgh was quoted as saying the first indication the British had that the American force actually was near came when a United States navy plane flew over the British cruiser.

"The weather then was so bad that we were very surprised that any naval aircraft should be flying," he said.

To the Edinburgh the American fleet signalled:

"We are more than glad to serve with the home fleet and are bending every effort to take our proper place in the battle line of that experienced and gallant force."

Bottle up Nazi Fleet

While the American force is engaged in all naval activities of the home fleet, the main task of the British and American heavy ships has been to keep the Nazi super-battleship Tirpitz, the battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, the pocket battleship Admiral Scheer and the strong cruiser Admiral Hipper and Prinz Eugen bottled up.

The RAF has so battered the Nazi fleet that the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prinz Eugen are in German ports for repairs.

The 35,000-ton Tirpitz and the 10,000-ton Admiral Hippen also have been reported hit by bombs but not put out of action.

Every since spring reopened the Arctic route to Russia, observers have been expecting the German warships to make a desperate effort to cut the supply line in what probably would be the biggest naval engagement of the war in European waters.

Japanese Seek To Paint Bright Picture of Loss

Tokyo Communique Minimizes Extent of Defeat at Midway

[By The Associated Press]

In a skillfully prepared communique, the Japanese Imperial command tried to make it appear last (Wed.) night that the Japanese navy had got the best of the United States fleet, although at considerable cost, in the battle of Midway.

Then it injected a curious claim—categorically refuted in Washington—of continuing Japanese troop operations in some part of the far-flung Aleutian islands.

Still later, a Japanese naval spokesman spoke of how the Japanese were able to "occupy western Aleutian islands" because of the naval engagement off Midway.

First News for Japanese

The communique, first inkling the Japanese people had received that its naval forces had been engaged in two major operations, stated that one Japanese aircraft carrier had been sunk, one heavily damaged and one cruiser damaged, but it said that United States losses off Midway Island and Dutch Harbor, in the Aleutians were these:

Two United States aircraft carriers and one "large transport" sunk; many aircraft destroyed. Then it went on to claim that Japanese troops had landed in the Aleutians, destroyed U. S. "positions" and "are continuing the operations in this area."

Jap Claims Expected

The Japanese claims on the Midway engagement were anticipated. Only Tuesday, the widely read Tokyo newspaper Asahi had paved the way for something of the sort with an article which went back to the Russo-Japanese war of 1904 to show that even in its victories, Japan must lose a little too. Hence a day before the communique came out, persons in this country familiar with propaganda methods expected the Japanese to announce some rather sharp losses, along with counter-balancing claims of success.

The Japanese description of the Aleutian island affair apparently fell in this latter category.

It was spoken quickly by a U. S. naval spokesman's announcement that "certainly none of our inhabited areas, islands or rocks are troubled with uninvited visitors up to this time."

Enemy Statement Vague

On the face of it, informed analysts said, the original Japanese claim to operations in unidentified points on an archipelago stretching some 1,500 miles and embracing (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

WPB Permission For Oil Pipeline Finally Granted

Work Will Start at Once and Be Completed in Six Months

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP)—

The War Production Board gave permission today for the immediate construction of an oil pipeline from Longview, Tex., to Salem, Ill., to increase the petroleum flow to the east but gave no indication that it would bring any relaxation of the gasoline rationing in the Atlantic states.

The board announced that the pipeline would provide "an increased supply of oil to the east coast area within six months" but Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the WPB, said it probably would be used primarily for fuel oil and secondarily for gasoline.

Nothing was said about the probable effect on the rationing program but abandonment of the rationing was viewed as unlikely, particularly in view of the campaign to reduce the use of tires.

The 550-mile pipeline will deliver 350,000 barrels of oil daily to the Salem area, from where most of it will be transported by tank cars, barges, great lakes carriers and other facilities to the eastern shortage area.

Completion by Dec. 1

The line is expected to be completed by Dec. 1. Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the WPB said, construction would start immediately.

Seamless steel tubing will be used instead of steel plate badly needed for shipbuilding and the construction of critical materials will be reduced additionally by the substitution of cast iron for steel in some places.

The action came after the WPB at least three times previously had refused priorities on steel for a 1,500-mile pipeline from Texas to New York.

The decision to build the shorter line, which will require 125,000 tons of finished steel as against 400,000 tons for the longer line, was made (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Murphy Leaves Court To Serve In Armed Forces

Associate Justice Gets Leave and Is Made Lieutenant Colonel

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP)—Associate Justice Frank Murphy took a leave of absence from the supreme court bench today to take the oath of a lieutenant-colonel in the United States army and said he planned to report at once for at least four months of duty.

The 49-year-old jurist explained his unprecedented action by disclosing that he had obtained a four-month leave from the supreme court, now in summer recess. His plans—which he said might be changed—were to return to the bench at the expiration of that period.

The justice was sworn in by Major General James A. Ulloa, the adjutant general, at the supreme court building today.

Germans Launch New Offensive In Kharkov Area

Moscow Reports Heavy Fighting in Important Sector

Russian Defense of Sevastopol Holds Enemy in Check

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Thursday, June 11 (AP)—The German troops have started another offensive on the Kharkov front after last month's heavy fighting in which the Nazis had claimed the "annihilation" of three entire Red armies there, the Soviets announced early today.

A communique which told of a further firm Russian defense of Sevastopol throughout yesterday said:

"On the Kharkov sector of the front, a battle took place against the German Fascist troops which had taken the offensive."

The communique did not indicate the outcome of the fighting in this area, where the Russians recently said they had thwarted Nazi plans for a big spring drive on Rostov, gateway to the Caucasus.

More heavy losses were inflicted on the Nazis in their repeated charges against Sevastopol, but the Kharkov action may be the beginning of another large-scale Nazi drive to reach the Caucasus oil fields.

Casualty Claims Differ

The communique gave no hint as to the extent of the Kharkov fighting which rolled along a 100-mile front between May 12 and May 31.

After the first major spring action in that sector the Russians declared they had killed or captured 90,000 Germans. (The Nazis themselves claimed to have destroyed three entire Russian armies—totaling roughly 600,000 men—and that 240,000 were captured.)

Red armies were credited in a supplementary communique with destroying or damaging 300 German trucks with troops and war materials, two railway trains, a hangar, and patrol boat Tuesday on various sectors of the front.

Elsewhere, the Russians said, no important changes had occurred. From all available reports the major fight still centered around Sevastopol, and at the end of six days of increasingly savage warfare the Russians were reported holding their main lines.

The German besiegers won some local successes, at the price of many casualties, Soviet military dispatches said, but the bulk of the Nazi forces was being held to original positions.

Russian Lines Hold

"Not a single line held by the defenders of the city has been seized by the enemy," front-line correspondents wirelessly to the army organ Red Star, although it was conceded that the Germans had effected a penetration of the hilly sector at a point where they still are trying to take two heights.

The battle had developed into a series of German battering-ram attacks against the solid Russian fortifications. In previous battles the Germans have been able to maintain such assaults for a period of only two or three weeks, after which they were forced to pause for rest and reorganization. How long they are capable of continuing the present attack remains to be seen.

Along the rim of low, rolling hills which surrounds the city the approaches to the Red army fortifications were described as littered with thousands of bodies, over which the Germans were rushing forward repeatedly.

American Rate of War Production Tops Britain's, Lyttelton Says

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP)—The swiftly-rising rate of American war production has already exceeded that of Great Britain and "will soon be far ahead," Oliver Lyttelton, British minister of production, asserted tonight.

Some indication of what this portends was disclosed by the minister in an address prepared for the Columbia Broadcasting System when he gave these figures on British production:

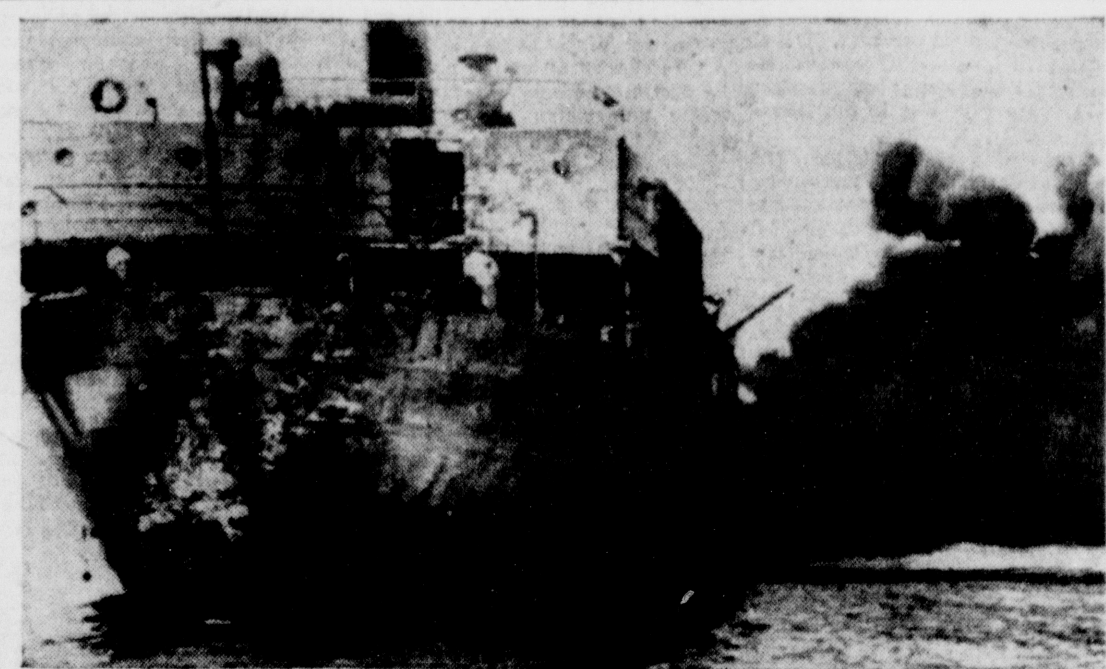

British Production Soars

"We are producing tanks, jeeps and other mechanical vehicles at a rate of 257,000 a year. This is an increase of 350 per cent over the rate in the last quarter of 1940."

"We are producing 40,000 big guns a year and supplying them with 25 million rounds of ammunition."

AFL Holds CIO Has Rejected Peace Proposal

"Rebel Movement" Stabs Older Organization, Statement Says

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP)—The AFL took the position today that the CIO had rejected its peace offer. It not only termed the latter's counter proposals "fantastic" but said the CIO "rebel movement" wanted AFL protection while stalling AFL unions in the back with organizational raids.

This sharp comment on the action of the CIO executive board last week appeared in the American Federation of Labor weekly news service, an official publication. Although generally regarded as authoritative, the statements were not credited to any individuals. High AFL officials have kept silent on the CIO suggestion for a joint meeting of the two executive councils.

"Torn by strife and division," said the AFL article, "the CIO has rejected the American Federation of Labor's invitation for immediate resumption of labor peace negotiations. This shortsighted decision came after a week of turmoil during which CIO president Philip Murray and his former chief, John L. Lewis, came to a final parting of the ways with a bitter exchange of acrimonious insults."

"Faced by the loss of its largest affiliate, the United Mine Workers, the CIO made it clear that it does not dare enter into discussions looking toward unity in the labor movement."

"The CIO tried to cover up its rejection of the AFL peace bid by making public two fantastic counter proposals which were wholly unworthy of serious consideration. The executive board of the rebel movement adopted a resolution declaring that organic unity now was a false issue. The resolution suggested a joint meeting of the executive councils of the AFL and the CIO, or a joint conference of the international officers of both organizations, to work out a program for functional unity."

"In other words, the CIO is asking for the protection afforded by the power of the AFL while it continues to try to stab AFL unions in the back by organizations raids."

FIFTEEN JAPANESE WARSHIPS SUNK OR DAMAGED AT MIDWAY

By WALTER B. CLAUSEN

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii, June 10 (AP)—The Japanese force which Americans defeated at Midway was an armada of more than thirty warships and perhaps half of them became casualties in the first three days of battle, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander of the United States Pacific fleet, disclosed today.

Information released by Nimitz indicated that thousands of the enemy must have perished. Japanese ships were sunk or damaged so rapidly and the invading fleet was on the run to such an extent that the Nipponese did not stop to pick up their men who had been cast into the sea.

This huge force, it was said, was in addition to the undisclosed number of ships sent against Dutch Harbor about the same time.

The battle of Midway moved so rapidly that the final returns still are not scored. It ended, for the time being at least, Saturday night when pursuing American forces lost the Japanese fleet remnants in the darkness.

Until the final accounting, the score, as reported by Admiral Nimitz, stands at two and perhaps three Japanese aircraft carriers sunk, with all of their planes; one destroyer sunk and three battleships and eight to eleven other ships damaged.

Nimitz reported the loss of one American destroyer, damage to one United States aircraft carrier and the loss of an undisclosed number of planes.

(The Japanese have admitted the loss of one aircraft carrier, damage to another carrier and a cruiser, and thirty-five planes missing. In turn they asserted they had sunk two 19,900-ton American aircraft carriers, one transport and shot down 135 United States planes.)

Germans Commit Savage Acts in Town of Lidice

Leave Nothing but Mass of Rubble in Place of Peaceful Homes

Blame Population for Alleged Hiding of Assassins of Heydrich

LONDON, June 10 (AP)—German vengeance squads utterly wiped out Lidice, a Czech village of 1,200 persons today, killing all the men and deporting the women and children, on the ground that the population harbored the two assassins of Reinhard Heydrich, the late German ruler of Bohemia-Moravia.

Completing this most savage single act of repression in the history of German occupation of Continental Europe, Gestapo and German soldiery razed the village, leaving nothing but rubble, the German-controlled radio announced from Prague.

Village of Miners

Lidice is—or was—a village of coal-miners and workmen a few miles west of the Czech capital and not far from where Heydrich "the hangedman" was fatally wounded by two patriots while driving along a winding road two weeks ago.

The assassins, who leaped upon Heydrich's car with automatic pistol and bomb, have not been caught.

Shortly after Prague and Berlin radio had announced the fate of Lidice "as the hiding place of the Heydrich murderers," German authorities in the Prague disclosed that twenty-five more Czechs had been executed today in the capital and six in Brunn for a total of 306—exclusive of the Lidice dead—to be slain since the attack on Heydrich.

500,000 Shot or Hanged

In London, authorities of the allied and exiled governments of the continent estimated that 500,000 persons had been shot or hanged in all Europe since the beginning of the German conquest.

Only yesterday during Heydrich's elaborate funeral rites in Berlin, Gestapo chief Heinrich Himmler vowed complete revenge on his killers. The slaughter of Lidice was his macabre sequel.

The Prague broadcasts did not give the number of men of the village who were shot. It said the women had been sent to a concentration camp and the children to "educational centers." Then the Nazis removed the name of the village from their records.

Other Changes Made

Besides being accused of hiding Heydrich's slayers, the population of the village was accused in the broadcast of having "committed other hostile acts such as keeping an illegal dump of ammunition and arms and maintaining an illegal transmitter."

Before this had happened, the Germans had executed 275 Czechs for the assassination of Heydrich, and it was apparent from German (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP)—Bi-partisan demands for abolition of the WPA—a long subject of Congressional controversy—arose on the House floor today while supporters of the relief agency contended it could make important contributions to national welfare in time of war.

The House will reach a vote tomorrow on a motion by Rep. Taber (R-NY), ranking minority member of the Appropriations committee, to wipe out the proposed $280,000,000 allotment designed to give employment to 400,000 persons on WPA during the fiscal year starting July 1.

War Labor Board Seeks Speedy Way To End Disputes

Delays in Its Own Machinery Reported Bothering Members

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP)—A majority of the War Labor Board, tired at delays in its own machinery, is ready to turn the heat on mediation and fact-finding panels to achieve speedier decisions in industrial disputes.

The subject, discussed informally for weeks, came to a head at an executive session of the board yesterday when it was authoritatively reported, Dean Wayne L. Morse declared his impatience with delays in resolving such major cases as "Little Steel" and General Motors Corporation.

These cases involve wage demands which affect the general wage stabilization picture.

13 Other Cases Stalled

Morse, dean of the University of Oregon law school and a public member of the twelve-man board, was reliably quoted as saying both "pattern" or "key" cases and his investigation showed at least thirteen other cases were being stalled until those two were decided. Robert J. Watt, AFL member of the board, was reported to have supported Morse's expressions.

General agreement with these views was reported, although there was no extensive discussion by other members. Morse, it was understood, said he did not know who was responsible for delays, and was not interested in responsibility but in results. He served notice, it was said, that he would offer an amendment to board procedure to require that panels submit their reports or recommendations to the board not more than thirty days after assignment.

Both Cases Certified

The "Little Steel" case, which includes four companies, was certified to the board between February 6 and 10. The GMC case was certified on April 28. Arthur S. Meyer, who is panel chairman in "Little Steel," also is chairman of the new York State Board of Mediation. It was reported yesterday the panel planned a final meeting with the disputing parties next week and would have its report ready for the board the following week.

Panel Chairman in the General Motors case is Fowler V. Harper, who is deputy of Paul V. McNutt, manpower commission chairman. The GMC panel has been meeting four days and three evenings a week for a month.

trial at Dayton, Tenn., which he covered, ended in a bout of oratory and the judge asked if Bell cared to make a speech for the record. He just said, "no sir, judge" with a friendly grin and a twinkle of the eye that spoke more warmly than words.

Many Notables Present

Members of the AP staff which Bell had directed here since Jan. 1, 1939, attended along with other newspapermen of the capital—men whose "bylines" are famous, others the public never heard of, but befriended alike by Bell. Supreme Court Justice Byrnes headed a long list of noted people present. William D. Hassett of the White House secretariat represented President Roosevelt.

Steve Early, press secretary to the president, "put the lid on" at the White House, holding up any news to "break" there until after the funeral to permit the White House correspondents to attend. The president knew Bell as well as Early did, and expressed sorrow at his death.

But all news could not be held up—the navy announced that a medium-sized merchant vessel had been torpedoed in the Atlantic, word came that Justice Frank Murphy was taking a temporary leave of absence from the supreme court to serve in the army.

No Letup in News

So not all the AP staff attended the funeral. Reporters clattered their typewriters, bells on the telegraph printers jangled for "bulletins" and the news "by the Associated Press" went out to the world, as Bell had arranged. That was a memorial service too.

About that time the casket, covered with a blanket of flowers "from AP men everywhere," was taken out of the rustic stone church to be interred in Columbia Gardens cemetery. The lights in the church (it was a gloomy, grey day) were turned off, the people departed.

The AP men went back to the office and resumed their work. Into the busy news room at the close of the afternoon came no friendly, kind-eyed bureau chief, tamping tobacco into his pipe, to scan the baseball scores and tell a funny story—not in the flesh, that is.

junior general in the office of General George C. Marshall. Murphy told reporters that he had wanted to get into the army ever since the outbreak of the Pacific war, last December 7, and disclosed he would leave immediately for Fort Benning, Ga. There he said, he would take an intensive six-week training course following which he would be assigned to an armored force.

Murphy's public career dates from the first World war in which he served overseas as a captain in the Eighty-fifth division. It was climaxed February 5, 1940, when President Roosevelt appointed him to the supreme court to succeed the late Justice Pierce Butler of Minnesota.

During the intervening years, the bachelor jurist served successfully as judge of the Detroit records court, mayor of Detroit, United States high commissioner to the Philippines, governor of Michigan and attorney general in the Roosevelt cabinet.

The closest precedent for Murphy's action within the memory of present court attaches is believed to have been Justice Robert's temporary absence from the bench last December to conduct an investigation into the Pearl Harbor disaster.

Germans Commit

advices received today in Switzerland that a new wave of punitive measures is on the way. Not only in Czechoslovakia but in other occupied countries.

New Terror Campaign

Prague, Paris, Amsterdam, all Poland and Yugoslavia probably will be the first to feel the chill of this new terror campaign, it was indicated in German advices reaching Bern.

Of the half-million Europeans already believed dead by the hand of the Nazi executioner, approximately five percent were wiped out in mass "re-education" killings of hostages. The remainder, including many women, were executed on various charges, such as sabotage, plotting and aiding the enemy.

The Norwegian, Belgian and Netherlands governments and the Free French committee here said the increased tempo of executions in the past few weeks indicated resistance to the Germans was increasing in direct ratio to the shootings.

Thousands Die in Camps

The governments, in estimating the number killed, did not consider "the countless thousands who have died in concentration camps or from ill treatment and hunger as a result of the new order."

The Yugoslav government estimated 350,000 killed in Yugoslavia alone and the Polish government said 90,000 Poles had been executed. They attributed the stupendous totals to German massacres of "entire villages in attempts to wipe out guerrilla activity."

Incomplete totals picked up from German broadcasts tell a grim story of their own, with the best compilations showing nearly 7,000 shootings and hangings reported by the Germans themselves.

A majority of the executions were never broadcast. Some were published in local papers which never reached London. One Czech-Slovak official said: "A vast number of those killed was never made public at all, but we hear of them eventually via underground routes. For example, last November the Germans said nine students were executed as a result of riots in Prague, but we know of 120 who were killed."

In Norway, Belgium, The Netherlands and Czechoslovakia and lately in France the list of those shot reveals the Gestapo is following a definite pattern of wiping out "intellectual" leaders. Teachers are frequent victims in Norway, while professors, students and "liberal" officials have fallen in other countries.

over the rate achieved during the last quarter of 1940. "We have increased our production of merchant ships by fifty-seven per cent over the last quarter of 1940 x x x

"We have increased our production of all weapons of war as a whole by 100 per cent during the last twelve months alone."

Lyttelton came to the United States to help set up the joint American-British Production Board, announced yesterday by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

Seeks Unified Program. "Donald Nelson, American War Production Board chief, and I have been working to gear the Birmingham and Sheffield, Pittsburgh and Detroit into one single engine of destruction," he explained.

The two were named by their respective governments to accomplish the pooling of industrial resources. Preliminary conversations have included standardization of weapons and more efficient use of shipping—currently the major problem.

"Britain's life depends upon shipping," Lyttelton declared. "The shipbuilding of the U. S. A.—surely one of the most massive industrial efforts ever exerted—will relieve the strain. The output planned will be attained—I am sure of it, but until the British mercantile marine must remain the principal link which binds the United Nations together in war."

Ickes Sees No Early Aid for Fuel Oil Users

No Assurance of Needed Supply for Winter, Co-ordinator Says

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP)—There is no assurance that sufficient fuel oil can be transported to the eastern seaboard for the needs of all consumers in that area during the winter, Petroleum Co-ordinator Ickes has advised Senator Reynolds (D-NC).

Reynolds had asked Ickes to outline the fuel oil situation. "I regret that I can give no assurance that sufficient fuel oil can be transported to the eastern seaboard to take care of all of the needs of the fuel oil consumers in that area during the coming winter," Ickes wrote in reply.

Seeks Larger Deliveries

"I am aware of the serious implications of such a shortage of fuel oil and this office, in co-operation with other governmental agencies and the petroleum industry, is making every effort to increase to a maximum the flow of fuel oil to the east."

Ickes said considerable success has been achieved in substituting other methods of transporting oil to replace the tank ships ordinarily employed.

Gas Flow Increased

"Through the use of tank cars, pipelines, barges and transport trucks abnormal movements overland and through the protected waterways into the eastern seaboard states have been increased from approximately 50,000 barrels daily in December of last year to the unprecedented total of nearly 800,000 barrels daily at the present time."

"However, even this quantity fills only approximately two-thirds of the minimum requirements of the east coast and only one-half of the quantity which was being consumed during the last half of 1941."

Admiral Griffin, in an official statement after the colorful ceremony in which King George inspected the American ships, said the king in a message had declared "I have been deeply impressed by the ships and ships' companies and I congratulate you and all those under your command upon the alert and cheerful spirit with which you are undertaking your duties in the common cause."

WPB Permission

by WPB after a special committee created by Nelson reported the line "could be built with a minimum of disturbance to the war production program" and could start delivering oil within half a year.

Reason for Decision

"It (the WPB) took this action after considering the changed situation with respect to oil tankers and military requirements," Nelson said, "and after receiving assurances that prompt construction of the line will not interfere with delivery of steel or motor equipment orders for the War and Navy departments or for the Maritime Commission's shipbuilding program."

No "Motoring As Usual"

Petroleum Co-ordinator Ickes said that the line was not proposed as a means to restore "motoring as usual" to the east but only to help provide the essential petroleum requirements.

Petroleum circles estimated that the line would cost $35,000,000 to $40,000,000. It will be the largest conduit ever constructed for transporting petroleum.

Nelson said that negotiations for financing the project would be begun by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and that the decision whether the line should be government-owned or privately owned and operated was up to the RFC.

Deputy Co-ordinator Ralph K. Davies said the special committee appointed by Nelson could continue studies to determine whether steel could be made available for a second leg of the huge line, from the Salem area to the New York-Philadelphia refining area as originally proposed by Ickes last fall.

Axis Heads Send Artillery into Action in Libya

Hitler and Mussolini Angered by Success of British Forces

By EDWARD KENNEDY

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY ON THE BIR HACHEM FRONT IN THE LIBYAN DESERT, June 10 (AP)—A British armored column with artillery and infantry collided with Axis forces east of Bir Hacheim at dawn today to relieve pressure on that besieged Free French fortress which has withstood a steady two-week battering.

Axis land and air forces smashed against the stronghold yesterday with redoubled fury—on direct orders from Berlin and Rome, it was reported by prisoners taken by the British.

Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini—apparently annoyed by the brilliant defense of the inland anchor of the British desert line by soldiers of a country they thought they had made impotent, sent orders that the post must be taken at any cost.

Right now I'm with a British tank unit ranging ahead of the 25-pounders of an artillery detachment. Several miles across a no man's land ahead are German tanks and German 88s. Still farther in the haze is Bir Hacheim and its gallant Free French who have been almost encircled several times but still are holding out grimly.

Jap Submarine Sunk by Allies

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, AUSTRALIA, Thursday, June 11 (AP)—An Allied plane seriously damaged and probably sank a Japanese submarine off the Australian coast, General MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The communiqué also announced a new Allied raid on Rabaul, New Britain, where a direct hit was scored on three grounded bombers and explosives burst in the main building area amid a large number of other Japanese planes.

The announcement said the attack on the submarine brought the Japanese total of undersea losses to nine in recent days, including the four midget craft sunk in Sydney harbor.

Triplets Graduate At Hagerstown

HAGERSTOWN, Md., June 10 (AP)—A triple grand slam was scored at Hagerstown High School commencement exercises today by the H. Lightners and family, when Patsy Earle and Bill Lightner—the city's only triplets—stepped up and received their diplomas.

The 17-year-olds hardly left the exercises before they started plans to find themselves jobs to help in the war effort. The boys are looking for work in some defense industry, and sister Patsy thinks she could do her bit as a telephone operator.

Mrs. Lightner said the children grew up just like any other youngsters, with triple doses of almost all childhood diseases to keep the household busy at intervals. None has ever been seriously ill, however. Their father is manager of a Hagerstown drug firm.

Both Earle and his sister were athletes in High School, while Bill is the more studious type, though he served as sports editor of the school newspaper. Earle played football and basketball, and Patsy basketball and volleyball on girls teams.

Eagles Discontinue State Conventions

FREDERICK, Md., June 10 (AP)—Delegates to the thirty-seventh annual meeting of the Maryland Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, voted unanimously today to discontinue further state conventions for the duration of the war.

Attendance at the convention which closes tomorrow has been at a minimum because of tire and gasoline rationing, and the press of war work, officials reported.

A resolution also was approved commending President Roosevelt's "humanitarian" action in supporting national measures sponsored by the grand lodge.

A draftee, Martin saw previous service in the army, having been with the Thirty-fourth Infantry for six years. He resided at 310 North Waverly terrace.

Maryland Crops In Good Condition

Rains and Warm Weather Aiding Farmers, Bureau Reports

(By The Associated Press)

Recent rains and warm weather improved Maryland crops and caused rapid growth, the weather bureau reported today (Wed.) in its summary of crop and weather conditions for the week ended June 9.

"The growing season is ahead of normal," the report declared, noting that wheat and rye continued to ripen in southern and central counties, and began ripening in northern counties with exception of the Allegheny mountain region.

Barley Ripened

"Barley has ripened and is ready for cutting. Barley was harvested at Queen Anne. Oats are good to excellent and are blooming at Queen Anne."

The report said pea harvesting continued in southern counties and started in the northern section, except in Garrett and Allegany counties. The crop, however, was described as "short and poor."

Early potatoes are good to excellent, and late potatoes are being planted in Western Maryland.

"Corn plants are mostly good to excellent and are growing rapidly. The early ones are being cultivated. They are about two inches high at Joppa, six inches at Northeast, and knee-high at Hurluck."

Tomato Plants Cultivated

"Tomato plants are being cultivated, the earliest ones are blooming and fruiting."

Farmers are continuing to set out sweet potatoes and tobacco plants, and the summary said sixty per cent of the tobacco plants at La Plata were set out.

The cherry crop is being harvested, and the report said the crop at Keedysville was only fifty per cent of normal. Other fruits are developing and are being sprayed.

Japanese Seek

500 islands could scarcely have been less vague. Later the Japanese spokesman "located" the "occupations" as in the "western" Aleutians.

Only one United States vessel, a destroyer torpedoed by a submarine, has been reported sunk in American communications, and one United States aircraft carrier damaged.

On the other hand, the United States navy listed two, possibly three, Japanese aircraft carriers sunk, a destroyer sunk, and from eleven to fourteen other vessels, including three battleships, damaged.

As to the Japanese ship claims, navy spokesmen indicated they thought the Tokyo announcement another attempt to smoke out information about the disposal of naval ships.

The Imperial headquarters text said:

"Japanese naval forces operating in the eastern Pacific carried out a surprise attack on Dutch Harbor, in Alaska, as well as against the whole group of the Aleutian Islands and continued these attacks on the enemy positions on June 4 and June 5."

Attack on Midway

"Naval forces moreover carried out a heavy attack on Midway island on June 5 and inflicted heavy damage on enemy naval units in this area and damaged at the same time naval and air force establishments."

"On June 7 naval units in closest cooperation with troops of the army destroyed a number of enemy positions on the Aleutian Islands and are continuing the operations in this area."

"Japanese naval formations sank in the course of their operations around Midway one aircraft carrier of the 'Enterprise' type and one of the 'Hornet' type, each of 19,900 tons, while 120 enemy aircraft were brought down."

"Important military objectives were destroyed. "In the area of Dutch Harbor 14 enemy planes were brought down or destroyed and a large enemy transport was sunk."

"Japanese units furthermore bombed groups of large oil tanks in two places and set them on fire as well as one large hangar."

"Japanese losses were one aircraft carrier lost, one aircraft carrier heavily damaged, one cruiser damaged and thirty-five planes still missing."

The dates in the Tokyo announcements are a day in advance of those in the American communications because of the time zone in which Dutch Harbor and Midway lie.

Cumberland Men Seek Change in Compensation Act

Harry H. Weiss and Clarence Lippel Address State Conference

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 10 (AP)—Meeting in the state capital for the first time since April when it decided to study the advisability of recommending a special session of the Maryland legislature to Governor O'Connor, the legislative council spent seven tedious hours in conferences here today.

Business discussed during the lengthy meeting included:

(1) The request of the Maryland State Hospital Association, asking amendment of the workmen's compensation act.

(2) Possibility of advising appointment of a committee to state off a threatened coal shortage next winter.

(3) Appeal of Allegany county state teachers union to a plan before the council to press demands for a special session.

(4) Recommendations for alterations in the law establishing the Baltimore people's court.

(5) Methods by which it could further study demands for a special session. The State Hospital Association's four man delegation opened the meeting with a direct request that workmen's compensation legislation, controlling maximum hospital benefits for industrial accident cases be amended to make the existing "$500 limit more flexible."

Weiss Presents Request

Association President Harvey H. Weiss, superintendent of Cumberland Memorial Hospital, and Clarence Lippel, Cumberland attorney, asked the council to propose to the 1943 legislature a plan "either to permit industrial accident commissioners to waive the $500 limit in extreme cases or strike out the benefit limits entirely."

They presented data and figures showing that Maryland hospitals in "five percent of industrial accident cases" receive only their prorated share of the $500 hospital benefits from the commission "although bills may extend upwards of $1,000."

E. Reed Caddy, superintendent of South Baltimore General Hospital, association secretary, and William Moreland, West Baltimore General Hospital superintendent, supported these arguments. Caddy pointed out that in the past five years such cases resulted in "heavy losses" at the South Baltimore institution.

Hospital spokesmen stressed that "industry, under law, is actually supposed to take care of its own employees but that because of the $500 maximum, industry actually is receiving charity." Weiss asserted higher insurance premium rates might be imposed on industry if the limits were increased.

Predicts Coal Shortage

Predicting a coal shortage by next winter which "would be beyond anybody's imagination," J. Edward Hibline, Baltimore coal distributor, urged the council to recommend to Governor O'Connor the appointment of a committee of coal men to take steps to forestall its possible effects.

Hibline pointed out that the state "probably would have to go into the coal business to offset a shortage" which would be caused by lack of adequate transportation facilities next fall. He suggested the commission, if appointed, should purchase coal from operators and distributors, thereby storing supplies at vantage points where they easily could be transported to consumers later on.

He asserted, "You can't induce the public to buy coal out-of-season and if the state does not want a great many public charges next winter, something along this line must be done soon."

The request from the Allegany county teachers union for a special legislative session came in a letter from Herman Ball, president, that declared Cumberland and Allegany county teachers, unless granted increased salaries, soon would bolt their present position for government jobs."

The council moved to invite the group to a future meeting.

Chief Judge Allan W. Rhynhart of the people's court presented the council with copies of the people's court act of 1939 on which he had made suggested alterations. These included the "partial payment" plan of settlement which would eliminate what he termed "revenge suits."

Restaurant Honor System a Success

Customers Tell Cashier What They Had and Pay the Amount

By SETH MOSELEY
NEW YORK, June 10 (AP)—There's a tavern in this town where you can eat all you want without paying a dime—but in a half a century not one hungry man, says the management, has tried to beat the check.

Actually, there are eighteen such taverns, branches of the Exchange Buffet Restaurant, all employing a unique honor system whereby it's left to the customer—and his conscience—to tell the cashier what he had to eat and to ask: "how much?"

Carroll Republicans Stir Some Interest

ENDORSEMENT of Theodore R. McKeldin, Baltimore attorney, by the Carroll County Republican State Central Committee as a gubernatorial candidate injects a bit of interest in the forthcoming state campaign which needs a bit of boosting in view of the fact that the political situation is radically changed this year by reason of the war situation.

McKeldin is well known in Allegany county, where he has been a visitor and a guest on various occasions. He is full of pep and a good talker; and has had experience in public affairs, having served creditably as executive secretary to Mayor William F. Broening, of Baltimore.

The McKeldin endorsement, of course, is not a shut-out affair, as is to be noted in his acknowledgment of the Carroll invitation to jump into the ring in which he stated he does not intend to file any papers as a candidate until it should be prompted by more general party action. Of local interest in this connection is the continued mention of Tasker G. Lowndes, of this city, as a possible candidate.

It might not be a bad idea for county branches of the party state committee to trot out all good available gubernatorial timber for ultimate consideration of the general committee, which could look over the field and possibly unite on a worthy contender through mutual agreement. As heretofore pointed out in this department, there is plenty of available timber and a lot of it will remain in hiding unless some encouragement is given for overcoming a reluctance to enter the field. As McKeldin has suggested, this is about as good a time as any—perhaps better—for the office to seek the man in the place of the man's seeking the office.

The action of the Carroll county committee, however, is a healthy sign. It means that the party is still alive and kicking despite the reverses it has suffered in recent years, and that our two-party system is to be maintained in Maryland, which is as it should be if we expect to preserve the American system of representative government. But beyond the need for continuance of the two-party system there is plainly discernible the need for a substantial constructive opposition to serve as a safeguard against needless extravagance, unwise plans and excessive bureaucracy in the conduct of government, for if there ever was a time in American history when such a need has obtained it is now.

Tydings's Estimate Is Being Outdone

FROM the Daily Mail, of Hagerstown, comes the following bit of political wisdom, which it clipped from the Democratic Bulletin:

"The Democratic party faces an unusual task in the coming elections in preventing the representatives of the special interests and predatory capital from selling the people 'down the river' and destroying all the gains that they have made under President Roosevelt during his administration."

One may be prompted to ask, pointedly, what gains? But that is overshadowed by the sheer demagoguery of the rest of the statement. It is to be regretted that the Democratic propaganda agencies are lowering themselves to put out such tripe as this, which is a relic of an era long since passed and which certainly can occasion nothing but disgust on the part of intelligent citizens. Do the Democratic press agents actually suppose the people take any stock in such puerile outgivings?

Senator Tydings recently criticized some of the government propaganda as being gauged to the mental level of a ten-year-old child. In such stuff as the foregoing the Democratic press agents go him still better. Almost any child of even younger age can spot it for what it is worth.

Federal Job Control

THE SHADES of Hamilton and Jefferson must be grinning as they watch the 1942 renewal of their famous contest over states' rights as against federalization, a fight now being fought in the meetings of the House Appropriations committee. For the states and the federal government have locked horns on the question of the advisability of federalizing the state unemployment compensation and unemployment service systems for the duration and possibly longer.

To many citizens, the drive for this objective by Washington officials has the stain and stigma of a political move masked in the tricky subterfuge of a wartime necessity, or at least what is claimed as a wartime necessity. Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, testified before the committee that such a program of federalization was necessary because unemployment is a "national and not a state problem."

His testimony conflicted with the opinion of his own Social Security Board as presented by its chairman, Arthur J. Altmeyer, who said the board had no intention of retaining its wartime federal control over state employment agencies and would "certainly recommend" their return to state control after the war.

Unemployment is both a national and a state problem. Neither Washington nor the individual states can solve it without the other's aid. The New Deal tried to do it alone with the WPA and other agencies. It failed, and it will fail in this new drive, the real purpose of which is to get federal control of state unemployment reserve funds.

Selling the War Savings Bonds

FOLLOWING the May War Bond sale campaign, which was notably successful in most states, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said that the plan to force the buying of War bonds by deductions from pay had been abandoned. "Any suggestion made or considered by Congress doesn't begin to equal the amount we can get through the voluntary method," he said.

Discussion of the compulsory savings plan yielded the official opinion that if put into effect it would stop practically all voluntary buying. Treasury experts believe that the compulsory plan and the voluntary plan can not be carried through together.

If Secretary Morgenthau's recommendation is followed, and no deductions are made for bond buying, the decision should release much money that has been held in anticipation of forced buying. It will also contribute to public morale, for there will then be no ill feeling over the possibility that those on regular pay rolls will be forced to buy, while those whose income is from other sources will be left free to decide for themselves.

If Congress will contribute to the bond campaign by reducing expenses that are not connected with the war, thereby assuring people that their bond and stamp buying sacrifices are not being spent to keep favored politicians in luxury, the sales should reach the $12,000,000,000 a year which the Treasury has set as its goal.

A Continuing Process

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY has just honored its most persevering student, the Rev. Joseph E. Carlin, by conferring upon him the degree of doctor of philosophy as the climax of thirty-nine years' part-time attendance at the institution. Besides being a student, the Rev. Mr. Carlin is principal of Public School 184 in Brooklyn and minister of the Queensboro Hill Community church in Flushing, L. I.

This is a reminder that the process of living is a continuous education to all who will let it be so and that those who do let it be so are the richer both in mind and influence. Too many persons feel that, with scholastic days over, their education is completed and there is nothing else to do, so they just vegetate. That, however, is a mistake. When one cannot take on added scholastic training, one should benefit from the school of life. There is always something to learn and it is never too late to enhance the intellectual processes.

Current song hit: "Somebody Else Is Taking My Place." It ought to be dedicated to one Benito Mussolini. However, in that case, "has been" would be better than "is."

One U. S. aircraft engine plant is a year ahead of schedule, it is reported. It is this application of the speed-up to his finish that Hitler doesn't relish.

An Imaginary Talk

By MARSHALL MASLIN

The Pretty Girl turned her head and said: "Why have you been staring at me?"

"Because you're so darned pretty," said the Man.

"But don't you know it's rude to stare at people?" asked the Pretty Girl.

"Some people think so, I know," said He. "But I think that while it's rude to stare at a very lovely person or a dwarf or a man with a terribly scarred face, it isn't rude to stare at a Pretty Girl. Why, that—that's more in the nature of a compliment, a sincere tribute to her attractiveness. It's as natural for a man to stare at a Pretty Girl like you as it is for the sun to rise in the morning or for a sunflower to turn its head toward the sun all day long. Don't you know that?"

"Well, what were you thinking about as you stared at me in such a complimentary way?"

"I was thinking nothing that could offend you. I was thinking to myself: 'That's the prettiest girl I've seen this year. What big blue eyes she has and what a perfect nose! Her mouth is sweet, too, and she knows how to dress. How nice to be a pretty girl! All girls should be pretty, like pretty girls should have pretty clothes like hers. Nature never does better than when she produces a pretty girl and here's a perfect specimen! ... That's what I was thinking!'"

"Were you falling in love with me at first sight?" asked the Pretty Girl, more gravely than you think.

"No," answered the man just as solemnly, "I wasn't. I'm married and in love with my wife. She's not so pretty as you, but she's more beautiful. She's fine, sensitive, generous, brave and beautiful. And she loves me, strange to say. Pretty Girl, I'm not in love with you but it's a joy to look at you—and I'll remember the pleasure of it for a day or two."

"Goodbye, Young Man!" said the Pretty Girl.

"Pretty Girl, goodbye!" said He.

Unified Selling Job Is Viewed as Best Depression Remedy

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 10—I have a letter from a Harvard economist who holds that maladjusted production was the cause of the ten years of pre-war depression, and he wants production adjusted for post-war prosperity.

A letter from an economic analyst on an important committee in Sioux City simultaneously tells me that prices caused our trouble and he wants prices fixed at a high figure.

A business man in the East made a speech in which he held that sales and marketing were the cause and should be the remedy.

I have come to distrust all mechanical economic formulas. The new deal tried them all and they did not work to remedy the condition with which we were faced.

The price theory of the Sioux City economist was tried first in the gold devaluation and other ways. The value of gold was changed to stimulate prices but prices did not move.

Tried in Farm Program

The theory of the Harvard economist was tried in the farm program, with arbitrary corrections of maladjusted production. A business counterpart of that was tried in the spending policy to create artificial production.

These two steps failed to do the job, until the war came along and the necessity for unprecedented war production required the expenditure of inconceivable sums, which, of course could not be maintained permanently.

The sales and marketing theory of the business man has not been tried. It does not involve a mechanical formula. Instead, it assumes only that government will be used for benevolent encouragement of the democratic capitalist system, not for discouragement. It proposes reform through prosperity, a sharing of the wealth by increasing it for all, not by dividing what is left in depression.

This business man, Walter D. Fuller, president of the Curtis Publishing Company, says there were an estimated 6,000,000 homes without bathtubs in this country during our ten depression years, 19,000,000 without telephones, 10,000,000 rural homes without central heat.

Plenty of Buying Power

"Lack of buying power?" he asks. "Not at all. Lack of ingenuity in exchange of goods and effort. We could have produced and financed these needs and more. We failed to do the selling job."

People will have money after this war he points out. Savings are accumulating.

Our system a failure? Why, says Mr. Fuller, from "a poor nation, ninety-five percent of whose people were ill-clothed, ill-fed, ill-housed and ill-educated, we have risen in 150 years to the supremacy of the world, over all other systems."

Was this because nature endowed us lavishly, or because we were larger, older, better than others? says Mr. Fuller.

"China has an older civilization. India has a larger population. Russia has comparable natural resources. England is a greater empire. France also was a republic. Germany has highly trained and skilled workers. Japan has a longer work day."

"But in all the world, only the United States could hope to produce enough planes, tanks, guns, ships and everything else quickly enough to win this war."

Mr. Fuller could have gone further. He could have pointed out that this unprecedented accomplishment is attributable to the new unification of purpose as between government, capital and labor and the typical American ingenuity exhibited by all three in this war effort.

Confusion over the Rubber Situation Should Be Abated, Mark Sullivan Says

By MARK SULLIVAN

A congressman who talked to the president says that the president says that he "may" make a radio address to give the public the facts about rubber and gas, and the need of rationing them—as soon as he has completed a "comprehensive study" of these two subjects. If the president bends himself to that job, he will find himself self faced with a mass of contradictory assertions about the facts—and, even more, contradictory judgments about what can be done or ought to be done. On the combined subject, rubber and gas, there is more writing and speaking—and more controversy—than on almost any other contemporary subject. Government officials differ; statements made in Congress differ; persons in the two lines of business differ.

One point about which there is general agreement is the starting point. The quantity of new, natural rubber in the United States is limited. It cannot be increased within the foreseeable future. Because, first, the greatest source, the East Indies, is in the hands of Japan. Second, whatever small quantity of natural rubber might be got from South America, is limited by scarcity of ships. Third, whatever natural rubber might be grown within the United States is small in quantity and will take time to mature.

So much for new, natural rubber. In that quarter there is literally no hope while the war continues.

Fantastic Differences

Turn now to used rubber, scrap—discarded rubber articles, from tires to rubber nipples. About the quantity of this, estimates differ fantastically. It is doubtful if the average family, city and country, has on hand as much as twenty pounds of usable scrap rubber. However, we shall soon know—a nationwide collection of scrap rubber is shortly to begin.

There is another category, rubber now in use—chiefly the tires now on wheels. Probably this is the best resource we have. Care in preserving this, avoidance of waste or unnecessary use of it, is the most practicable way of meeting our a record of adventure, of risk, of experiment—the exciting story of untrammelled private initiative.

There has been disturbing evidence aplenty of recent years of a disposition to substitute governmental control—state socialism—for the free enterprise system. The war, with its accompanying necessity of centralizing authority in Washington, has greatly stimulated this trend. Make no mistake about it, the economic planners, the disciples of a new order, the swarming federal bureaucrats will not easily give up their jobs and their advantage. It will require a real fight to restore the private enterprise system to its old status. Unless this fight is successfully made the post-war progress so many people are envisioning will prove nothing but a mirage.

Coming from so well informed a source this is, indeed, good news. There is, however, a big if attached to it. If and only if the American system of free enterprise is permitted to function is it reasonable to look for such a development. The whole history of business and industrial progress in this country is emergency. The government thinks so.

So much for natural rubber, both new or used or in use. However much there may be of it is hardly enough.

Iron Wheels

Next, substitutes for rubber—substitutes as distinguished from synthetic rubber. Substitutes are those things which can be used in place of rubber, although they lack rubber's quality of spring, elasticity. Almost anything can be a substitute for rubber, even iron. Previous to fifty years ago, practically every wheel on every road or street had iron tires. The faint beginning of rubber for transportation came in the early 1880's, when a few bicycles had solid rubber tires less than an inch in diameter. Today, more people ride on iron wheels than are conscious of it—railroad cars on iron wheels make upward of 59 miles an hour. To what degree our present automobiles, and our present roads, could be adjusted to iron wheels, is in dispute. Making the change would consume much man power—and man power will soon be recognized as our ultimate shortage.

Next, synthetic rubber. By several processes, synthetic rubber can be made as good as natural rubber, and, when produced in quantity, at a lower cost. Manufacture of it is getting under way, in many different plants. But the judgment of those best informed is that it will be at least two years before synthetic rubber is produced in material quantity.

War Gets First Call

Even if we could know all the figures about existing rubber, and all about future supply, there would still be a question. How much rubber, of all kinds, will be needed for our armed forces and those of our allies? Whatever the quantity, that is a first call on all we have. Only after we have given to our war effort as much rubber as it needs, directly or indirectly, can the ordinary citizen expect new rubber tires for personal use.

What is the connection between rubber and gas? Much of the public has got the idea that gas is rationed largely as an indirect way of forcing reduction in the use of automobile tires. This, many resent. They say they are not children, that they can and will practice economy of tires. But there are other reasons for rationing gas.

Gas, in sections distant from oil wells, consumes transportation. If the transportation is by ship, there is a shortage of ships. If the transportation is by railroad, there are war uses for that form of transportation. Even though the supply of gas now seems unlimited, so may the possible demand of our war effort turn out to be unlimited.

Not one person in a hundred stops to estimate the quantity of gas consumed by that thousand or so of British airplanes for one ninety-minute attack on Cologne, or the tonnage of ships required to carry it to England, or the time consumed by a round trip of the ships.

President Roosevelt, if he makes that address to the public, might help in convincingness if he felt free to tell the quantity of gas consumed by our planes in the recent Pacific battle, the quantity of oil fuel consumed by the naval vessels, the quantity of cargo shipping needed to replace what was used.

Boomerang Feared In General Plan Of Gas Rationing

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 10—There are many explanations being offered about the apparent change of attitude at the White House concerning nationwide gasoline rationing.

The change may be short-lived but that nationwide rationing of gasoline in order to conserve rubber has been temporarily held up is conceded.

Why was the plan halted? One explanation is that the political pressure of the representatives and senators from western states had its effect and that many of them feared an adverse result in the November elections if rationing of gasoline were subsequently proved to have been unnecessary.

Still another explanation—and it sounds more reasonable than the others—is that the administration officials who have been imposing restrictions right and left without thought of the effect on the people now are confronted with the most serious rationing problem of all and one which, unless it is proved absolutely essential, might become a boomerang.

That the American people will accept any kind of rationing that's really needed may be taken for granted. But they don't want rationing that's based on faulty figures or guesses or the excessive zeal of a bureaucrat.

Congressmen Not Convinced

The truth is the Congress group who hold over on the subject of nationwide rationing are not convinced that it's necessary. They are in a show-me attitude. Under such circumstances it becomes Mr. Roosevelt's duty to prove the case for nationwide rationing. He cannot do so without making a personal check of the figures. Such checking as he has already done reveals that there is a wide discrepancy in the estimates of the experts as to available scrap rubber, and that's a very important factor in the whole problem.

Well if the president cannot get reliable statistics, nobody else can and the next job is to find out just how much scrap rubber is available. Once a figure is determined that can be relied upon, the necessity for nationwide gas rationing to conserve rubber will either be proved or disproved. There is certainly no harm in a few weeks delay, so as to assemble the necessary data.

Uncertain Contingency

It may be, of course, that the course of the war in the Pacific had something to do with the president's change of attitude on nationwide gas rationing. If, for instance, our fleet is soon to take the offensive, it may mean that we can cut the lines of communication of the Japanese to their newly acquired possessions in the Netherlands East Indies. This could conceivably mean the recovery of some of the rubber plantations within twelve months, and that would bring in enough rubber to take care of our needs.

But it is improbable that the American government would venture to lean on such a contingency at this time. The problem of supply for our military forces is on the way to solution, but this does not provide anything for civilian use and it would be dangerous to allow any considerable amount of the military stockpile to be used until the war had shown a far more decided swing in our direction than it has thus far in the Pacific.

But it is estimated that it will require only about 35,000 tons of crude rubber mixed in with the reclaimed or scrap rubber in order to increase the mileage of seventy-five per cent of all our automobiles by at least a couple years. This is a very important extension. The answer to whether it is wise to divert even such a small amount of raw rubber cannot be given until it is definitely determined how much scrap rubber is actually available. That study is now in progress.

Area Shortages

Certainly there is no need for gas rationing in the Mid-Continent areas where distances from oil wells to consumer are small unless the conservation of rubber is taken into consideration. The Eastern Seaboard and some parts of the Pacific Coast area will continue to have a gasoline shortage, irrespective of the rubber problem, but even these areas will benefit by temporary accretions to the gasoline supply if the rubber problem is solved. As the anti-submarine patrol proves more effective and transportation by inland waterways and railroad tank cars are gradually brought into enlarged use, the shortage in the East will tend to be relieved.

But as for rubber—that's something else. The truth about rubber is that conservation everywhere is essential. It's somebody in the scientific world finds the answer either in more re-treads or synthetic products.

Parents Should Keep Child Calm During Air Raid

Emotions Are Contagious and Adults Must Keep Peace of Mind

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Emotions are contagious, especially in these times. This is well illustrated in connection with blackouts and air raid drills. In various parts of the United States parents have told me of violent expressions of fear among young children during and after the community precautions against air raids. Also one hears on every hand that most of these children soon regain peace of mind when parents, teachers and other adults are calm and able to keep the child's attention on things away from suggestions of harm, danger.

Regains Composure
As the younger child sees the adult and older child follow instructions and rules during an air raid drill in business-like fashion, and as he is assured that these drills aim to make us all more safe if raids should happen, he is likely to regain composure. Some young children, even those as old as eight or ten, get emotional relief as they play imaginary games of escape from raids, scampering under beds and designated places of safety in the home.

A serious problem with older children and many adults is that they do not take air raid drills seriously enough, don't do as they are directed to do or go where they are told to go. On this matter parents, teachers and the police should be very exacting.

Safe Ways To Play

As soon as school vacation begins it will be still harder to effect good discipline during an air raid drill. Parents should always know where their children are; certainly now in these perilous times, and for their moral as well as physical safety.

Right away parents of the child under 10 or 12 should require him to remain in the block or near home. While this rule is good to be followed in normal times, it is especially desirable now. Moreover, in every block, parents should work together at ways of providing safe ways for play. In many communities some streets should be roped off for play places.

Throughout the day, in all our family relationships, we can be preparing for air raids and blackouts. The more ways we practice at cooperation, companionship and good times together when all is well the better resources we have to master our own emotions and to keep our children calm and courageous during air raid drills.

Familiar Songs

We ought to practice singing familiar songs with simple melody and rhythm, singing loudly and lustily, keeping time with tapping of the feet and clapping of the hands. The banjo, accordion, piano, harmonica or other instruments might be effectively played in the dark. Indeed, it could be fun for the family to sit and sing together at twilight or after dark. Also

SOPHISTICATED SEWING

It may seem old to see sophisticated Tallulah Bankhead working away at a sewing machine, but it's all due to a questionnaire sent out by the American theatre wing war production committee asking what type of practical war work its members could do. Talented Tallulah volunteered her services as a seamstress and is shown proving that she knows all the whys and wherefores of this needle and thread business.

Some religious groups might profitably practice at hymn-singing in homes or in churches.

Telling Stories

Some parents can tell stories well or make them up; so can some children. If stories have been read to the young child he and the older children and the parents can have much to talk about in the dark.

A selected list of books to read to the baby and young child, or a list for the school-age or adolescent child to read, may be had by writing me at 235 East Forty-eighth street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. What special patriotic service do you especially recommend for high school youths now?

A. That they impose on themselves a curfew law—to be out no later than midnight—provided their parents will do likewise.

Waste Goes In Till, $1,600 Up in Smoke

ST. CHARLES, Va., (AP) — Mrs. Jake Smith's sleight-of-hand was unintentional — but $1,600 went up in smoke because of it.

At the close of business in her cafe recently, Mrs. Smith stuffed the money—all paper bills—in a paper bag and carried it home. The next morning while cleaning house she stuffed another paper bag with waste paper and refuse, and took both bags to the store.

As she greeted customers she dropped one of the sacks into the trash can and it wasn't until the trash had been carted away and burned that the wrong bag — the one filled with waste—was emptied into the cash register.

The ashes were carefully retrieved and sent to the U. S. Treasury Department in the hope that experts might be able to identify the bills' serial numbers from the ashes.

"A kick-out" in the navy is slang for a dishonorable discharge, which is also called a "Yellow Ticket."

Migraine Headache Often Mitigated By Refraining from Drinking Water

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D., attacks entirely by refraining from drinking water as soon as he had an indication that the headache was coming on. I asked at the time if any other of my readers had had such experiences and I have had a very large and generous response from people who have had the same experience.

There were too many of these letters for the results to be mere coincidence. So far as I know, I have never seen any reference to this in a text book of medicine, but that is understandable because so many people with migraine or sick headache treat themselves and their remedies never get to the medical profession.

They probably start out by having a doctor when their attacks first begin but soon find that he does not give very much relief or that they can learn everything that he has to offer. For instance, in one of the letters that was sent me on the subject, a woman says that she and her family have moved seven times in the last twenty-five years and have consulted a great many doctors but she has never consulted one about her headaches.

Took Opium
A typical statement is as follows: "I suffered terribly from migraine for many years and it was necessary for me to take a great many opiates. I was always told to drink a lot of water but I got disgusted and quit it and found that my headaches were not nearly so severe, although they did not quit entirely. But when I force myself to drink water, they are always worse. I am writing this, hoping it might be a help to someone else."

Another one says: "I have had migraines since I was about 19 and am now 50. I cannot endure the thought of drinking water before the headaches start or during the worst of the pain and when water tastes good, I am sure the headache is over for that time. Another thing I have noticed is that the quickest way to get over the exhaustion from the pain and nausea is to eat very rare beef. My family have their laugh at Mother's day-after-a-headache diet of rare hamburger steak. My grandfather had these headaches, also my father who was an M.D., but could not cure his own migraine headaches. My sister has them, but my brother does not."

Another letter says: "I confirmed fifty.

The victim nearly always can tell when he is going to have a headache, so the admonition to stop water drinking can be obeyed in most instances early enough to do some good. While there are a

The cause of the disease is prob-

I shall stop and show you how my coat looks on, the next time I am in town. Thank you for all your trouble and kindness.

CHAPTER FORTY-SIX

"IT IS NOTHING short of a miracle," Marg said, as had Tommy, to Tibby when she came to see her in the hospital. Marg's plain face was alight, as Tommy's had been, at her joy that her friend was alive and, as she expressed it, "all in one piece." "You might have been burned to death, darling—it makes me shudder just to think of it! You must have had a rabbit's foot with you, honey, or the like. Anyway, you're here—all in one piece—and that is all that matters."

Tommy had said that, too—that that was all that mattered: everyone was saying that to Tibby. She did not feel that way. She was thankful, of course, that she had escaped severe injury, or even a horrible death. She would have been a very foolish girl, had she not realized that this had indeed been a miracle, but she was troubled by the silver ship, the beautiful silver ship that was no more than would never fly again. If only she could have saved it.

"You're not to worry about the plane," Marg said, as did everyone else, in talking with Tibby. Everyone seemed to sense that she was worrying about it a great deal. "Wayne Courtwright surely has it covered with insurance. Even if he hasn't, he will be so thankful that you are safe that it won't make any difference. What's an old ship, darling, compared with you?"

Tibby knew that Marg was endeavoring to cheer her up, so she managed a faint smile, but she was not cheered, not in respect to the ship. It had not been an old one, but a very expensive one, a ship that could not be replaced now with the country at war, thus making its loss even more momentous.

Tibby did not know whether Wayne carried insurance on the ship or not. He still was out of town, for which she was thankful. Maybe she ought to be ashamed to feel that way, but she could not help it. She dreaded to think of his return, not just because of the silver ship, but because of the other things that she must tell him. Of course, she would have to tell Wayne about that other miracle. It would not be fair not to tell him, for she could not marry Wayne now that her heart had spoken.

Neither Marg nor anyone else knew about that, and so they naturally thought that it was only the silver ship that Tibby was troubled about, which was why they kept trying to reassure her that its loss, though serious, was not so important.

"You'll be out of here in a few days," Marg was saying, still keeping up that cheerful front. "You'll be as good as new, except for that bandage you will have to tote around for awhile. And you look so interesting, darling! Now if it had been me, instead of you, I'd probably have a couple of broken legs, so I couldn't get around, and my poor old mug all cut up to make me more attractive, or at least my front teeth knocked out. You must have had TWO rabbit's foot, darling!"

Tibby managed a better smile this time, for Marg was a dear to try so hard to put a cheerful front on everything. Poor, darling Marg, whose own heart was anything but light and cheerful; she had received the tragic news that Captain Mercer had been among those brave men who had put up such a gallant fight at Pearl Harbor. Captain John Mercer had been one of the country's first war heroes. He was credited with having shot down two Jap planes and probably crippling several others. He had conducted himself with outstanding bravery and valor. His name would go down in history. Marg's John had made the supreme sacrifice—he had given his life that democracy and freedom might live.

Marg had not shed any tears; she had not grieved. She had accepted this news with quiet dignity. She said that she knew that was the way John would have wanted to go. She did not think of him as dead. "I know," she told Tibby, "that he has his wings now—'for always.' The wings of the spirit of which he had spoken."

"I have decided to go back to nursing," Marg told Tibby now. "They say they need nurses and will be needing them badly. I said all along that that was what I would do if we got into this war. I'm glad that I'm needed, that there is something I can do."

Tibby knew how Marg felt, in service to her country she could lose her own sorrow. She said, "I think that's fine, if it's what you want to do, Marg, only I hope you won't have to go somewhere right away. I hope you'll be here a while—at least until I get out of this hospital!" She knew Marg was not planning on leaving that soon, but Tibby was making an effort to contribute to the cheerful mood her friend contrived to maintain.

"As if I'd leave before that!" Marg's expression was reproachful. "Steen and I are planning a regular celebration to welcome you home, my pet. We may not be able to manage a brass band, but we certainly are going to do our best!"

Tibby said the brass band would not be necessary. It would be enough just to be allowed to return to the apartment. They treated her very well in the hospital—in fact she had never had so much lavish attention—but it was a hospital for all that.

Marg said, "Do you know, Steena is a different girl! I can't imagine what's come over her! She's that sugar-sweet lately. It may not last, of course—re-formations seldom do.

I always said our Steena had her good points beneath all that beauty. She was wonderful to me when the news came about John. Not one word of sarcasm or the like. She couldn't have been more understanding and sympathetic had she been my own mother."

Tibby did smile at this. Steena in the role of Marg's mother. But she knew what Marg meant, for Tibby had had a visit from Steena, too. They had had a long heart-to-heart talk that had cleared up many things between them. Tibby had been right in thinking that Steena had courage, of her own kind. It had taken courage for Steena to tell Tibby all that she had confessed, that she had used Tommy as a foil, that the engagement between herself and Tommy had only been a part of a campaign, that it was all off and over with.

Tibby had not told Steena about the miracle, but she had thanked her for coming to see her and for all the things that she had said. When Steena had got up to go, Tibby had asked her if she would do something for her. She had not given her reasons. She had just asked it as a simple favor.

Steen had said she would be glad to do anything she could. She had said it almost humbly, eagerly. Tibby slipped the ring off her finger, the magnificent pearl ring, with its surrounding sapphires, that did not belong on her hand, that had never seemed to belong there. "I want you to keep this for me—until I come home," she said. She did not have to give the obvious reasons, that such a ring was out of place in a hospital, even a risk, since it might be misplaced or stolen. Her real reason for asking Steena, instead of anyone else, Tibby kept to herself.

No doubt Steena thought the ring could have been put in the hospital vault, or entrusted to another person, anyone, it would seem, rather than herself. Yet she was pleased that Tibby would entrust it to her. It must mean that everything was all right between them. She accepted the ring, saying she would take care of it until Tibby asked for it again.

But Tibby did not intend to ask for it, ever. She had other intentions in the back of her head. They might work out, and again they might not, but they were worth trying anyway. It was not a campaign that Tibby planned, as Steena had; but being feminine Tibby had her own way of trying to make things "pan out" as they really should, now that this was not, as she, and Tommy and Steena had thought, the end of everything.

Everything was not settled, by any means, since that something had happened that Steena had predicted. Steena, too, had been right—in a way.

TODAY'S VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

By Dean Halliday

HOW TO PLANT FRUIT TREES IN VICTORY GARDENS

Many home gardeners prefer dwarf fruit trees to standard varieties as they are easier to plant, prune, spray and, later to pick the fruit. Another feature in their favor is that they usually bear fruit the second year after planting.

Dwarf fruit trees can be planted either in the Spring or Fall. Many people prefer fall planting, believing the trees' root system can become fairly well established before growth begins in the spring. Orders should be placed with the nursery early, to assure the desired varieties.

As illustrated in the Garden-

Graph, when planting these fruit trees dig a hole large enough so that the roots can be spread out. Any roots which have become bruised or broken should be cut off. Place the tree the same height it was growing in the nursery. When filling in around the roots with soil, first use some of the top soil. Shake the trees gently to let the soil sift down around the smaller fibrous roots. Then add more soil and pack it firmly. When about half-filled with earth, water it well. After the water settles, fill in firmly with the remaining soil.

"Well," said the private. "I'm new here and I wanted to be sure I greeted each of you so I raised a finger for each officer."

PERNICIOUS ANEMIA CANNOT BE CURED

Don't be misled by the quacks and charlatans who claim to cure pernicious anemia. The most contemptible person in the world is the one who will sacrifice public health, comfort, and happiness for his own financial gain. A patient having pernicious anemia is deficient in red blood cells. New red blood cells can be developed by a process with which your physician is thoroughly familiar. The process is constant and does not effect a cure. It does, however, enable the patient to complete a normal span of life. Always consult your physician in times of illness. Then bring his prescriptions to us to be filled.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 10 (AP)—The Conservation commission's mobile wildlife exhibit has been retired "for the duration of rubber rationing" and the tires will be removed and used on trucks of the division of fish management, conservation Director T. D. Gray states.

Gray said the matter resolved itself into a choice between presenting exhibit and adequate handling of the fish restocking program, with the result that the exhibit truck will be stored until new tires become available.

Gray estimated that 215,000 persons viewed the dioramas and living animal exhibits carried on the truck last year.

DESTROYER NAMED FOR MARYLANDER

MOUNT AIRY, Md., June 10 (AP)—When the sleek new United States Destroyer Boyle is launched at the Quincy, Mass., shipyards of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation June 15, attention of at least one Mount Airy resident will be drawn to the ceremony.

The ship has been named after Capt. Thomas Boyle, great-grandfather of Mrs. Ralph Sellman of this community.

Capt. Boyle, another of a long line of Marylanders who gained fame in the nation's sea forces, was one of the heroes of the War of 1812. Historians record him as one of the daring and successful Yankee commanders that helped uphold freedom of the seas in that conflict.

In 1814, Boyle commanded the Maryland Privateer, Chasseur, whose model now stands in the city hall at Baltimore. His name appears frequently in two volumes, "Lady Lively" at the Enoch Pratt library in Baltimore.

The destroyer Boyle will be christened by Mrs. Margaret Glascock of Massachusetts, a cousin of Mrs. Sellman's mother, Mrs. D. C. Owings.

Mrs. Sellman has been extended a special invitation to attend the launching by the general manager of the shipyard.

I have already given two cousins to the war, & I stand ready to sacrifice my wife's brother, rather than see the rebelyin krusht.—ART-EMUS WARD.

"Twin Beds" Offers Glittering Comedy

A slick comedy cast, headed by such luminaries as Joan Bennett, George Brent, Mischa Auer, Glenda Farrell, Ernest Truex and Una Merkel, is responsible for the gayety, fun and hilarity which highlight the swift-moving action of the new Edward Small production, "Twin Beds," which starts today at the Maryland.

Based on the Broadway hit farce of the 1916-1917 theatrical season, "Twin Beds" was transferred to the screen under the directorial baton of Tim Whelan, who previously directed "International Lady" for the Small studios. It tells a laugh-getting story of a young married couple, consisting of Miss Bennett and Mr. Brent, who become involved in a whole series of crazy complications because the heroine goes about daffily doing good deeds where they always have the worst possible effect.

Miss Bennett's enthusiasm for good causes finally brings her harassed husband to the end of his rope and he skips town. When he returns, on a mission of reconciliation, she is greeted by a surprise that is more than any man in his right mind is willing to accept. From there on the story gambols madly to a bright finish.

One of the funniest sequences in "Twin Beds" got there accidentally. Brent, attired in robe and pajamas, was supposedly having a running quarrel with his screen wife, Miss Bennett. As he dashed around the end of her bed his foot caught in a bearskin rug and he landed heavily on his knees and one shoulder.

The spill looked so funny as it was caught by the camera that Director Tim Whelan ordered the take printed and rewrote the sequence to include it. "Twin Beds" something entirely new in love-technique of "Cossack's Kisses," making as originated by the remarkable Mischa Auer.

New Feature Color Cartoon Stars "Mr. Bug"

The love story of a manly grasshopper and a cute, cuddly bee, told in Paramount's Technicolor feature-length cartoon, "Mr. Bug Goes to Town," which is now at the Strand theater, is said to have more zing than has buzzed into town in a long time.

This is the Max Fleischer successor to "Gulliver's Travels" and this, too, has to do with little people, only this time it is the little people of the insect world who will fascinate movie-goers. Never has there been drawn a more adorable figure than the completely feminine Honey Bee whose heart belongs to Hoppy, the grasshopper, and who is pursued by the villainous C. Bagley Beetle. Beetle is a highly improper man of property, and in order to win the sweet Honey is ready to sacrifice all of Bugville. But with a skip, hop and jump, Hoppy goes to the rescue sounds the call to wings, and Bugville takes off on one of the most enchanting flights of fancy that has ever been drawn for the screen.

Five great song hits—"We're the Couple in the Castle," "Be My Little Baby Bumble Bee," "Katy-Did Katy Didn't," "I'll Dance at Your Wedding" and "Boy, Oh Boy!"—add to the enjoyment of the film.

New Baby Star Rises On Hollywood Horizon

A new baby star has arisen on Hollywood's horizon to add his name to the list started by Jackie Coogan and continuing down the years to Baby Sandy.

The newest infant actor is Baby Harold Michael Barnitz, a thirteen-month-old, apple-cheeked youngster who makes his screen bow to the public in Universal's "Butch Minds the Baby," which also features Virginia Bruce, Brod Crawford, Dick Foran, Porter Hall and Shemp Howard.

Director Albert S. Rogell, who directed the picture, calls Baby Mike "one in a million" and predicts a brilliant screen future for him. "Butch Minds the Baby" based on an original magazine story by Damon Runyon, comes tomorrow to the Liberty theater. It is the tale of a hardened, but sentimental safe-cracker who meets the baby under unusual circumstances. "Butch," the safe-cracker, is a "three-time loser," that is, he has been convicted three times, and one more offense will send him "up the river" for life. Despite this risk, "Butch" pulls one last job, but finds himself in the undignified position of having to take the baby along with him on the safe-cracking expedition.

Lum and Abner Enact Screen Philanthropy

A drive to provide Pine Ridge, a community too small to support a real hospital with a mobile hospital unit and a competent physician provides the background for adventures of Lum and Abner, lovable stars of radio in their first motion picture, "Dreaming Out Loud," for RKO Radio, which is now showing at the Garden theater. The two old storekeepers use all the philosophy and deep knowledge of human nature they possess to overcome the objections of the town's richest woman, Clara Blandick, and ultimately obtain the mobile hospital. They find time meanwhile to assist Cupid in patching up the romances of Frances Langford and Robert Wilcox and to serve as the "hands" of paralyzed "Dock Wall," played by Frank Craven, in a delicate operation to save the life of Bobs Watson.

Hollywood Ribbed In New Comedy Hit

By way of showing that nothing is safe from the film makers' sense of humor, Hollywood itself comes in for a good-natured ribbing in "Yokel Boy," a new Republic comedy which opened today at the Embassy theater.

Scene of the fun is the Mammoth Film Company—fictitious, of course—where Alan Mowbray holds forth as a scatterbrained producer. Acting as his zany assistant is Eddie Foy Jr., playing the part of a "yokel" who has been brought to Hollywood because of a newspaper story crediting him with an uncanny ability to prophesy what success any particular movie will enjoy.

Foy's job is that of producing, invariably boomerang to the studio. Foy's job is that of producing, disadvantage. Tops in his blunder, ideas—and although he turns in promptly take it over and run it to his movie ambitions and return out themselves. The balance of the studio to its rightful owners.

Tigers Defeat Yankee 4 to 1 in 11 Innings

Harris's Homer With Two Aboard Decides Contest

Cramer Boosts Hit Total to 2,001--Gordon Extends Batting Streak

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP)—Ned Harris slammed a home run into the rightfield stands with two mates on base in the eleventh inning today to give the Detroit Tigers a 4 to 1 triumph over the New York Yankees and steal the spotlight from several other noteworthy efforts.

One of the players from whom attention was distracted was his teammate, Roger (Doc) Cramer, who made three singles to bring his lifetime total of hits to 2,001 and enter a select group of hitters that includes only six others now active in the major leagues.

Cramer blows today, however, had nothing to do with the outcome of the game. Till the eleventh Detroit's only run was a homer by Jimmy Bloodworth in the fifth.

At Benton, who went the route for his third victory, scattered ten hits in a pitching duel first with Mary Brewer and later with Fireman Johnny Murphy, who was charged with his first defeat of the season after three winning relief performances. They held the Tigers to eight safeties.

The Yanks tied the score in the eighth when Frank Crosetti beat out a bunt and went on to second as Pinky Higgins overthrew first, then came home as Tommy Henrich singled.

Joe Gordon extended his batting streak to twenty-seven games, but did not get his single until two were out in the last of the eleventh. The box score:

RACING NOTES

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP)—Robert W. Collins's Irresistible became a threat for Saturday's $5,000 Constitution handicap when he stepped the fastest three-quarters of the New England season today in the feature event at Suffolk Downs.

Irresistible won by two and one-quarter lengths in 1:10 3-5, with J. H. Loucheim's First Son second, half a length in front of E. R. Bradley's Best Reward.

Last for almost a half mile, Irresistible came with a tremendous rush on the rail to overtake the field and return $20 for $2 at the mutuel windows.

A pair of long shots, Gilette and Zeilen Zee, paid $537.80 on thirty-eight tickets, one of the largest daily doubles of the New England season.

Isadore Bieber's Shadows Pass, a $3.40 for $2 favorite, raced to an easy victory over five rivals in the featured Bowers claiming purse at Delaware Park, completing the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:45 1-5.

Ridden by Eddie Wielander, Shadows Pass took command at the last turn and finished three lengths ahead of Detroit Bull, which took the place by a neck over Clucka. The score was a double for Wielander and his twenty-first winner of the meeting.

Few Handicaps Aren't Anything To Racing Fans

Government Could Put Obstacles in the Way To Boost Bond Sales

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, June 10 (Wide World)—It's remarkable to what extremes your racing fan will go to lose money once he has set his mind to it. He'll climb the highest mountain, swim the broadest river and walk on burning coals if there is a chance that the end of his journey will find him in a position to donate something toward the improvement of the breed.

Judging from the attendance and the wagers at the tracks, the government, if it really wanted to boost war bond sales, would put a few obstacles in the way. If the citizens had to walk a few miles, climb twelve flights of stairs and recite verse from Shakespeare before they were permitted to hand over their money, business should perk up.

This idea is based on the theory that since the racing fans continue to find their way to the track with their pockets bulging, despite the tire shortage, gasoline rationing and one handicap or another, nothing will stop them from getting rid of their money. All it takes is a little will power.

No Penny-Ante

The Aqueduct track opened last Monday and the uncertainty of the times considered, the assumption would be that there would be a sharp curtailment in attendance, and that with the citizens sinking every spare nickel into war bonds, the betting would be on the penny-ante order.

So what happens? The attendance of 13,797 was an increase of 647 over the attendance for opening day last year, and the wagers totaled $89,469 for eight races, considerably more than the total for the seven-race program a year ago.

Naturally all of the 13,797 didn't donate money, and probably every one in the crowd went to the track convinced that he would come away with a profit.

But the chances of any one fan leaving the track with more money than he had when he came are considerably less than his chances of seeking his bankroll on the Indian rope trick and vanish in thin air. If they weren't, there just wouldn't be any racing, that's all.

It's their money to do with as they please, and if a guy wants to stand on a street corner and hand out silver dollars that's his business, although a wagon probably would be backing up before long and a couple of men in white coats would say gently: "Come on Napoleon Josephine has supper ready."

State Gets a Cut

They think a gent is crazy for giving away his money that way, but if he trots up to the mutuel window before every race and shoves his folding money through the wicket like he couldn't get rid of it fast enough, that's just fine. The state gets a cut on that dough.

A high government official suggested that horse racing should be continued as usual, as "the people must have a little fun."

A little fun! Did you ever study a race picture. For every face expressing joy you'll find a dozen looking like the owners had suddenly been taken ill, which they probably had, at that. Suddenly been taken, that is.

But some people have a peculiar idea of fun, which is why they have distance runners and weight lifters. And even golfers, who have more fun suffering than anybody we know.

So maybe the racing fans do have fun losing their money. They must, or they wouldn't put up with such inconvenience to do it.

Markwood Wins Fifth Flight Title in CCC Spring Golf Tourney

Paul Markwood yesterday joined Elmer Gower, Frank Blau and J. H. Holmes in the flight winners' circle of the Cumberland Country Club's spring handicap golf tournament.

Markwood, who previously defeated Charles L. Kopp and C. H. Griggs, won the fifth-flight championship by turning back J. L. Mattingly, 3 and 2.

A Target At Which To Shoot

College football plans and aims seem to be obscured in a number of fogs and mists so far as the public is concerned. But I can give you one that isn't. This is Maryland university where Clark Shaughnessy, late of Stanford and the "T"-formation, is the man on the job.

We have known Shaughnessy for a brief matter of twenty-seven years, since he started coaching back around 1915. Outside of Lennie Stage, now with the College of the Pacific, this makes Clark either the dean of present day coaches, or close to the mark. And I doubt that football has known any coach with a finer influence on his football pupils.

The main point is that Shaughnessy and Maryland, with the full support of President "Curley" Byrd, has set up a 1942 plan that is well worth looking at.

The Maryland System

"In this last spring practice," Shaughnessy said, "we had eighty-seven men out who were divided into four teams, and matched together in games."

"But this is only a starter. Next fall I expect to have at least five hundred Maryland students playing football. And I might say I've been spending more time on fellows who never have played the game than on those who have. And it's surprising how many of these like the game and want to play it, once they get the general idea."

"All together in this country we should have over 200,000 young fellows playing football this fall, even though most of them will never make any first or second team."

A Few Arguments

In the course of an evening's conversation it is only natural that a few arguments should develop. One was the matter of the greatest fullback and the greatest running back.

Clark's selections were Norman Stande of Stanford and the Chicago Bears for the fullback job, with George McAfee of Duke and the Chicago Bears on the running sides.

Fairaris Fails In Aqueduct's Shevlin Stakes

NEW YORK, June 10 (AP)—The threatened new Fairaris was supposed to pack in the three-year-old racing whirl didn't give Alasab and Shut Out anything particular to worry about today.

The English "refugee" who was imported by R. S. McLaughlin, the Canadian motor magnate, and equalled the track record at Belmont in his last outing, wound up a well-beaten second in the fifteenth running of the Shevlin stakes—three full lengths behind Mrs. Ethel V. Marx's Chicago-owned Dogpatch, a high-priced yearling of a couple of years ago.

To give him his due, Fairaris had a whole bundle of tough luck wrapped up for him in this mile-and-a-sixteenth three-year-old fixture. He was bumped in a tangle going to the first turn, was shut off by W. W. Crenshaw's Zaca Rosa in the back-stretch and was carried wide around the stretch turn. But despite his rough he was in front going into the stretch and just didn't have enough to stall off Dogpatch's closing rush.

As a matter of fact, Dogpatch, himself, stumbled coming out of the gate, but recovered under Al Schmidt's handling and came like a bullet in the last quarter of a mile. He won by a clear three lengths and picked up a $3,500 winner's pay-check in chalking up his first victory of 1942 after seven unsuccessful tries.

Lacks Usual Speed

The son of Bull Dog, who returned $24.20 for each $2 win ticket, was clocked in the comparatively slow time of 1:44-2-5, two full seconds off the track record. This in itself made it appear that Fairaris is going to have a tough time shuttling in on the territory of Shut Out and Alasab in the championship of the three-year olds. For, it was only the blazing speed the English importation showed in the recent Peter Pan handicap at Belmont that made many race-goers regard him as a surprise package for the two big guys.

Although he was backed down to 3 to 10 in the betting today by the 14,761 customers, he didn't show anything like his usual speed in beating William Woodward's Trier-arch by two lengths for the place. Al Vanderbilt's Rascal was fourth.

Win Two of Three

The Laing Avenue softball team won two of three recent games, defeating Burke's Commandos 11-4 and losing to the same club 3-0 and trimming the Lacy Juniors 10-5.

Elks Meet DeMolay

The B. P. O. Elks of the Rocking Chair Softball League will play the Cumberland DeMolay ten this evening at 8 o'clock at Campobello.

GAME TOMORROW

North End at Colleagues (North End) YMCA at West Side (Campobello)

The West Side Merchants extended their winning streak at the expense of another victory string and went ahead in the City Softball League's first half championship race by turning back Lacy's Delicats 8-5 yesterday on the Taylor diamond.

The Merchants racked up their fourth straight triumph and took a two to one lead over the Delicats in their private series. The defeat, in addition to ending the Delicats' five-game winning streak, shoved the Lacymen to second place a half-game behind the West Siders, who have copped eight of nine contests after losing their first two.

The West Side crew didn't clinch the game until the first of the seventh when it scored four runs on hits by Paul Whitford, Nick Lisanti, Jim Angelaglia and George Geatz. The Delicats tried hard in their half of the seventh but a threatened rally died after two runs had scored on doubles by "Pooch" Orndorff, Ray Penner and "Beet" Orndorff.

Hoyle Pounded Hard

The Delicats made three runs in the first on three walks and Charles Fisher's error of Herman Athey's fly but West Side went ahead with two runs in each the second and third.

Lisanti by "Lightning" Naughton and Geatz followed by an error while in the third, George Geatz singled, Paul Fisher doubled and Naughton lashed out his second single.

George Geatz had three hits for the Merchants, who gathered a total of twelve blows off "Fuzzy" Hoyle. Herb Dawson, after relieving Diehl in the first, twirled five-hit ball for West Side.

A close battle was waged on the North End playground field where Keegan's Colleagues nosed out the Central YMCA, aggregation 3-2 to tighten their grip on third place and end a two-game losing streak. The setback was the fourth in a row for the "Y" and its ninth loss in its last ten games.

Colleagues Break Tie

The Colleagues broke a 2-2 deadlock in the last of the sixth to nip Jim Wilkinson's "Y" terrors in a close and hard-fought pitching duel between Tommy Crumbitt, the loser, and John Wolf, the winner. Each hurler allowed a half-dozen blows and struck out one.

The Colleagues put the contest out of reach when Henderson singled and stole second, took third on an infield out and counted on Crumbitt's wild pitch.

Crumbitt had lots of trouble keeping the ball down and was charged with a half-dozen wild pitches, four of which helped the Colleagues. In the first, when both teams counted one, Franklin Seel walked, went to third on two wild pitches and scored on "Buddy" Henderson's single. In the second, Paul Mertens singled, went to second on a wild pitch, advanced to third on an infield out and counted on another wild heave.

The "Y" first tally was the result of Frank Williams's single, Paul Kemp's double and a passed ball. The other Y.M.C.A. marker, manufactured in the fourth, came on Rowan's triple and Allan Twigg's single.

Henderson, with a triple and two singles in three trips to the plate and Lou Bell with a pair of one-base raps led the Keegan assault. Kemp potted a double and single for the "Y." The scores:

In Memoriam

DONALDSON—A tribute of love to the memory of my dear husband, Walter M. (Toots) Donaldson, who departed this life three years ago today, June 11, 1939.

God is the way I loved so dear,
But he is the voice I loved to hear;
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach.
Sweet to remember him who once was here,
And who, though absent, is just as dear.

—Fondly remembered and sadly missed by his wife,

OPA Is Essential To Winning War, Walsh Declares

Attorney General Speaks at Formal Opening of District Office

The OPA office and the rationing board office which is connected with it are both part of the war effort, and the work which these offices are doing and will do is essential to the prompt winning of the war, Attorney General William C. Walsh said yesterday in a radio address at the formal opening of the Western district office of the Office of Price Administration, fifth floor, Liberty Trust building.

"As you all know, the government has found it necessary to ration automobiles, tires and other accessories, gasoline here in the East, and sugar and other commodities which contain steel and other essential war materials have been frozen, and as time goes on there is a probability that various other commodities will be rationed or frozen," Walsh declared.

Stresses Price Limitations

In addition, the scarcity of such articles, plus the increase in the purchasing power of the people brought about by employment in defense industries has made it necessary for the government to place limitations on the prices of many commodities in order to prevent ruinous inflation, and the consequent hardships which such inflation would bring to the entire country.

"The OPA office and the rationing board are part of the governmental machinery which has been established to handle these matters, and while no one likes rationing or price limitations, I am certain that every American citizen will fully co-operate with the personnel of these offices as a part of their contribution towards winning the war. After all the sacrifices which we civilians must make are quite small when compared with the sacrifices being made by the men in the armed forces, and the greater our co-operation is the sooner these men will be marching home with victory perched on their banners, and the more of them there will be to march home.

Thanks OPA Officials

"I want to thank Mr. Leo H. McCormick, state OPA administrator; Mr. Reuben Oppenheimer, chief of the legal division; Mr. J. William Eggleston, state rationing officer; Mr. Stewart Waring, price specialist, and the other state officials who came here to open this office.

James H. Osborn, Veteran of Civil War, Dies at 94

Enlisted in Union Army at 16 and Served as a Scout

James Henry Osborn, 94, a veteran of the Civil war who joined the Grand Army of the Republic at the age of sixteen, died yesterday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Virginia Lee Davis, 824 Greene street. She is his only survivor.

Services will be held tonight at the Wolford funeral home with the Rev. Dr. William A. Eisenberger, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiating. Interment will be made in Blumont cemetery, Grafton, W. Va., Friday.

Mr. Osborn had been bedfast for six weeks and seriously ill for only a week. His wife, Mrs. Kittura Osborn, died in 1912.

Orphaned At Age of Nine

Born in Taylor county, Va., now West Virginia, April 10, 1848, he was a son of the late Charles and Lina Grimes Osborn. He was the ninth child of a large family and was orphaned at the age of nine. A Dr. Trayhorn, Taylor county, Va., raised him until he was sixteen when he enlisted in the Union army. He was so anxious to participate in the war that he mis-stated his age.

Although he was a native of Virginia, Mr. Osborn helped string the first telegraph wires through this section many years ago and after that went into service with the Baltimore and Ohio railroad and became a conductor on the Parkersburg division. He was retired in 1913 and resided in Cumberland since 1923. He was a member of the Presbyterian church.

Mr. Osborn voted for every Republican presidential candidate since he cast his first vote for Ulysses S. Grant in 1868 and in 1940 voted for Wendell Willkie in preference to President Roosevelt.

Recalled Civil War Days

At that time he recalled his days as a scout in the Civil war and told how the Confederacy was winning all the major battles. The shedding of so much blood on both sides caused Abraham Lincoln to request Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy, to lay down his arms in sixty days with the provision that slave states would remain so and free states would continue to be free.

Davis refused the request and Lincoln then issued his Emancipation proclamation freeing all the slaves in all the states. After that, Mr. Osborn said, the Union started to win the war.

In an interview two years ago, Mr. Osborn said "I believe God won the war for the Union because of Abraham Lincoln's christian-like methods in freeing the slaves and because of Lincoln's other benefactions."

At the time of his death, Mr. Osborn had in his possession a Bible belonging to his grandfather who lived to be 102 years old. Some of the dates in it refer as far back as 1780 but the Bible is believed to be even older than that.

The death of Mr. Osborn leaves James Reed, 117 North Allegany street, the only Civil war veteran living in Cumberland.

For twenty-five years he was yardmaster of the Southern Pacific railroad in Los Angeles but returned to the concrete contracting business there about ten years ago. His last visit here was in 1937 at the time of his father's death.

Mr. Hoffman was educated in the public schools of Cumberland and was a member of St. Paul's Lutheran church.

Draft Eligibles Will Register On June 29, 30

Kopp Will Recommend Hours 1 to 5 p. m., on the Opening Day

Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of Allegheny county public schools, yesterday said that he will recommend the hours from 1 to 5 p. m., Monday, June 29, for the registration of young men between the ages of eighteen and twenty in the fifth draft when he confers with officials of the local draft boards next week.

The 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. hours for Tuesday, June 30 will be observed throughout the state.

Kopp explained that the registration of the eighteen-twenty-year-olds will follow the same lines of previous registration except that not as many registration places will be required nor as many school teachers and volunteers will be needed to serve as registrars.

All men born on or after January 1, 1922, and on or before June 30, 1924, will be required to register. Men in the fifth registration will be given gray cards.

Eighteen and nineteen-year-olds cannot be drafted into military combat under the present Selective Service Law. However, those who became twenty years old since the last registration are subject to call to duty immediately.

Col. Henry C. Stanwood, state draft director, is warning local draft boards that they are required to report by telegram to him at least five days before the registration starts as to their state of readiness for the enrollment.

Auto Tax Stamps Will Be Important Identification in Gas Rationing

It would seem to Chatter that it would be safe to say now that by all accounts the backbone of winter has been broken hereabout.

Chatter notes that a bandit in Baltimore after robbing a storekeeper made his getaway on a bicycle. However, it cannot be said that the "Good Old Times" are back again until real horse thieves make the front pages.

Will Identify Coupon Book

In the areas where gasoline is being rationed or will be rationed, Stakem said he had been advised by the Office of Price Administration, possession of a stamp evidencing payment of the use tax on motor vehicles will provide one of the necessary means of identifying the coupon book with the vehicle in the purchasing of gasoline.

Each stamp is serially numbered, is gummed on the face and there is space on the back for entry of the make, model, serial number and state license number of the vehicle. This, it was explained, is in contrast to the stamps now in use.

To guard against loss or theft, Stakem suggested that when affixing the stamps, the windshield should be dampened rather than the adhesive side of the stamp. As an additional precaution, he also suggested that each motor vehicle owner should make a record of the serial number on the stamp in order that there may be some means of identification in connection with gasoline rationing in event the stamps should become lost.

Place Stamp on Windshield

The stamp should be placed on the windshield in a location that will not conflict with state requirements, Stakem said. He explained that because of regulations in New Jersey, stamps should be placed on the rear window of automobiles registered in that state.

As in the sale of stamps earlier this year, they again are being sold by the various postoffices over the counter for cash only. No mail order business will be conducted. Collectors of internal revenue are authorized to accept cash, postoffice money orders and certified checks in payment for the stamps.

Two white rats, Adolf and Benito, are being used by the Farm Security Administration home management supervisors, to demonstrate diets.

Adolf eats well and plenty. Benito's diet is insufficient. School children study the results.

Stamps Which Must Be Purchased by July 1 Carry Serial Numbers

Serial numbers on federal automobile use tax stamps for the fiscal year beginning July 1 will be an important identification in the issuance and use of gasoline rationing books, Richard J. Stakem, deputy collector in charge of the local internal revenue office, said yesterday.

The tax stamps were placed on sale yesterday in all postoffices and offices of collectors of internal revenue. Costing $5, the stamps must be purchased before July 1 and will replace those bought earlier this year which expire June 30.

Salvation Army Closes Salvage Paper Campaign

Two Carloads of Old Paper Is on Hand, Philipson Discloses

The paper and cardboard salvage campaign, conducted here by the Salvation Army since shortly before the Christmas holidays, was concluded yesterday because the market is closed. Brigadier B. L. Philipson, officer in charge, announced after a meeting of the Salvation Army Advisory Board held in Allegheny Inn.

Despite current signs in local stores to "request your purchases unwrapped if possible to save paper for defense," Philipson said paper mills stopped taking newspapers and scrap paper two months ago.

About four weeks ago, Philipson said, he was able to dispose of one carload of cardboard but the market for that also is closed now. The Salvation Army has on hand now two carloads of newspaper and waste paper and one and one-half carloads of cardboard, he added.

The board advised closing the campaign when it was confronted with the facts and recommended that scrap on hand be disposed of when the market opens again.

Philipson said six or seven of the nine men collecting the scrap will be laid off Friday and those who remain at work will continue to collect metal, rubber, rags, burlap bags, coat hangers, furniture, victrola records and other similar articles.

Glass will be collected for another week before that campaign is discontinued. There is still a market for magazines and books.

For the past month all of the men have been working for a few dollars a week. Philipson related, because there has been no money available with which to pay them. They will receive additional pay when the market opens and the scrap paper and cardboard can be disposed of.

Opening of Bass Season is 15 Days Later than in 1941

Minke Advises Opening Date Is July 1; Trout Season Closes July 15

Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden, last evening called the attention of nimrods to the fact that the 1942 bass fishing season does not open until July 1 and extends until November 30.

Minke said that a number of fishermen have old pamphlets in their possession designating June 15 as the opening date and he added that this date is incorrect. He pointed out that the Maryland State Game and Inland Fish Commission changed the date to July 1 and urged fishermen to abide by the new law.

Too Early Last Year

Last year the open season on bass was June 15 to November 30 but it was deemed advisable to set the opening date back to July 1 because brood bass were being caught off the spawning beds and this was looked upon as detrimental to good fishing.

New pamphlets now available at the court house indicate July 1 as the opening date as well as other information valuable to fishermen, Minke said.

The creel limit for bass is ten a day and there is no limit on hours for fishing. Other fish that may be taken from streams during the bass season are pike, blue gill and perch. The legal size for bass is ten inches, pike fourteen inches and perch seven inches. There are no restrictions on the size of blue gill.

Minke said that Town Creek and Will's Creek, between Corriganville and State Line are the best bass streams in Allegheny county. Garrett county's bass streams are the lower end of Savage river, Deep Creek Lake and the Casselman river.

Trout Season Ends July 15

The trout fishing season which opened on April 15 will close July 15, overlapping the bass season by fifteen days. Minke said that trout season is good this year but there has been a scarcity of fishermen at isolated streams due to the gas rationing program. The limit on trout is ten a day.

VFW Head Favors Printers' Action

McKenzie Lauds Resolution Condemning Exemptions from Draft

Approval of the action taken Sunday by Cumberland Typographical Union No. 244 in adopting a resolution opposing exemptions for men otherwise eligible for the draft on grounds that they are needed to act as officers or representatives of labor organizations, was expressed in a letter received yesterday by Charles Barringer, secretary, from William L. McKenzie, commander of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

"We feel that the action taken by your organization typifies the true democratic principle of Americanism and merits real commendation," McKenzie wrote.

"For some time this organization has been vigorously opposing deferments from the operation of the Selective Service Act of all men otherwise eligible unless it can be clearly and publicly shown that the applicant is in fact irreplaceable and further feel that no deferment should be granted until after a thorough investigation and if possible a public hearing should be held on each case.

"We will appreciate anything further you may be able to do to eliminate deferments of any person who would otherwise be classified as A-1.

Wants List of Men

"We are today writing to Major A. K. Kleasius, state administrator on occupational deferments asking him for a list of all men heretofore granted such deferment in Allegheny county with permission to publish the same in the local press and requesting him to give publicity to any such deferment granted hereafter."

The local union also went on record by a unanimous vote, to support the policy of unity toward victory in the war effort set forth by the constitutionally elected officers of the CIO, headed by Phillip Murray.

Local 1874 Votes To Back Bridges

Order to Deport Labor Leader Is Decried in Resolution

Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, went on record last night as being against the deportation order by Attorney General Biddle which would result in sending Harry Bridges, West coast, labor leader, back to Australia.

The union passed a resolution calling attention to Bridges' efforts among West coast longshoremen and seamen in aiding America's war effort. The resolution also stated it would be a blow to labor generally and promote disunity.

Copies of the resolution were ordered sent to President Roosevelt and Attorney General Biddle.

The local union also went on record by a unanimous vote, to support the policy of unity toward victory in the war effort set forth by the constitutionally elected officers of the CIO, headed by Phillip Murray.

An order was also passed to donate two turtles to the Police and Firemen Benefit Associations "Turkey Derby" which will be held later this month at the state armory.
